THE HISTORY OF THE RED WINGS AND OLYMPIA

Professional hockey in the Detroit area dates back to Nov. 18, 1926 when the Victoria (British Columbia) Cougars of the National Hockey League, purchased by a Detroit syndicate, played their first game. Playing their home games in nearby Windsor, the team finished in the league cellar.

But in the 1927 season things showed improvement. Ten-year-NHL star Jack Adams began his illustrious 35-year career with Detroit as Manager and Coach. The team moved into the gleaming new OLYMPIA STADIUM on the night of November 22, 1927. With a new leader and a new home, the Cougars played .500 hockey and finished in fourth place. But success in the late twenties was only moderate. In the 1930-31 season a change of nickname to "Falcons" failed to improve their 4th place finish.

Meanwhile in Chicago, industrialist James Norris was operating the semi-pro Chicago Shamrocks. He was eager to own an NHL franchise. Despite owning the Chicago Stadium, Norris was frustrated in his attempts to buy the Black Hawks, Major Fred McLaughlin's entry in hockey's premiere league.

Informed that, despite their second place finish in the Depression year of 1932-33, the Detroit franchise was on shaky ground financially, the patriarch of the Norris family successfully bid on and purchased both the hockey team and Olympia Stadium.

The name "Falcons" was supplanted by "Red Wings" with the insignia a winged automobile wheel . . similar to that of a team called the Winged Wheelers with whom Mr. Norris played in his earlier years in Montreal. The 1933-34 season saw the "new look" Norris franchise under Jack Adams win the league championship . . . the first of 13 such triumphs for the red and white team. In 1935-36 they won it all — the NHL championship and their first of seven Stanley Cups.

Over the years, some of the most illustrious names in hockey have been identified with the Red Wings. Twenty-nine Red Wings are enshrined in the NHL Hall of Fame. More than 80 Red Wings have enjoyed All-Star status. Detroit players have captured upwards of 40 individual league trophies.

The most amazing string of titles in NHL history was recorded from 1948-49 to 1954-55 when the Red Wings won a record seven consecutive league championships. In that span they captured four Stanley Cups.

The team and the Stadium have remained in the Norris family continuously. Following the death of the elder Norris in 1952, his daughter, Marguerite Riker became President and is the only woman to hold that position with an NHL team. During her tenure the Red Wings finished in first place in each of three seasons and won the Stanley Cup twice. In 1955, Marguerite relinquished the presidency to her brother, the current president, Bruce A. Norris.

The Red Wings' position in the Detroit sports spectrum is only equalled by Olympia's notoriety in the entertainment business.

From its first event, a rodeo, Olympia has expanded its facilities to accommodate ice shows, wrestling, boxing, stage productions, basketball, roller derby, the circus and most recently, some of the biggest names in the music industry. This well-rounded schedule of events has gained it the distinction as "the entertainment mecca of Detroit."

Setting attendance records has also become a tradition at Olympia. Originally a 10,000 seat arena, expanded to 14,200 — Olympia recorded its largest hockey crowd last season at the Detroit vs. Montreal game, April, 1975 with 16,200 fans in attendance. Frank Sinatra, Elton John and Elvis received fond welcomes with nearly 17,000 fans jamming the stadium.

Air-conditioned private boxes, the Olympia Room, the Wing-Hi Room, comfortable theatre-type seats and other precedent-setting innovations have kept this freeway-surrounded stadium with its acres of parking lots in the forefront of the nation's entertainment scene. Olympia Stadium . . the Norris family . . . the Detroit Red Wings . . . synonymous with champions.

BRUCE A. NORRIS

A member of one of hockey's most prestigious families, Bruce A. Norris will begin his 21st season as president and owner of the Detroit Red Wings and Olympia Stadium.

Hockey has been the focal point of his life, from his playing days at Yale through assuming leadership of the Detroit Club — following his father, the late James "Pop" Norris and sister, Marguerite Norris Riker, and serving as chairman of the NHL Board of Governors on two occasions.

Norris is also Chairman of the Board of the flourishing Miami-based development concern, Norin Corporation, as well as president of the Norris Grain Company, the original family business.

During her tenure, the Wings had finished first all three seasons, winning the Stanley Cup twice. She is the only woman to have her name engraved on "the symbol of hockey supremacy." In addition, Ms. Riker holds the distinction of being the youngest chief executive in NHL history and the only woman to hold the position.

ARTHUR NORRIS

At 24, Arthur Norris begins his third season as vice president of the Detroit Hockey Club and Olympia Stadium.

Having grown up with the Red Wings and played hockey himself, the younger Norris, a resident of Detroit, is the family's liaison in the city.

Delvecchio began his NHL career with Detroit in 1951-52 and was second to Gordie Howe in all-time NHL lists for seasons, games, points and assists, and ninth in all-time goal-scoring.

A winner of the Lady Byng Trophy three times, he was most recently the recipient of the Lester Patrick Award in 1974 for outstanding service to hockey in the United States.

JIM SKINNER

Coach of the Red Wing Stanley Cup winners of 1954-55, Jim Skinner will remain in his position as assistant general manager of the Red Wings for the upcoming season. Although he never played with an NHL team, Skinner achieved the ultimate success in his rookie year as coach of the Detroit Club — a Stanley Cup team. He continued with the Detroit organization from 1958 through the start of the 1973-74 season as chief scout, being appointed assistant general manager at the beginning of that season.

Resuming his duties as assistant coach of the Red Wings is Billy Dea, a former "wearer of the Wing" and professional hockey player for 19 years.

Retiring from professional hockey after the 1971-72 season, Dea served as coach and general manager of the Detroit Junior Wings for two seasons.
